Former head of Tax on the dividend case: It was all so unreal

- It has been hell to go home, says previously repatriated boss in Skat.

As Tax in 2015 collapsed during huge cases of dividend fraud and a dysfunctional recovery system, five tax executives were sent home.

One of them was Dorthe Pannerup Madsen, who will be questioned by the Commission of Inquiry on Skat, where she sits rocking a little uncertainly on her chair in front of the three commissioners in a room filled with lawyers and journalists.

Dorthe Pannerup Madsen has something on her mind.

- Today is a very special day. I'm going for questioning. But it's also the anniversary of my repatriation from Honey. It's now four years since I was sent home. I broke down and cried with my colleagues. I did not understand the situation, it was all so unreal, says Dorthe Pannerup, who managed to be employed in Tax for 37 years before retiring at an early age because she could not wrestle herself free to the dividend case.

- It's been hell to go home. I have always had good control of the tasks and a good network. But suddenly there was silence, the management colleagues withdrew. I had a migraine attack, I also did not sleep much last night, says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen in the Court in Frederiksberg.

Police reviewed the economy

When the dividend case broke out in the fall of 2015, management demanded in Tax action. Foreign moneymen had deprived the Danes of at least DKK 12.7 billion in dividend tax, and now heads had to roll.

And when Dorthe Pannerup Madsen was head of the department that paid out the huge sums of millions abroad, she was sent home, suspected of gross negligence.

- It has had major consequences for me and my family. Both personally and financially, and I have had to experience that the police have trawled our finances ten years back, says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen, who has later been cleared in an investigation by the Chamber Advocate <https://www.dr.dk/nyheder/penge/skat-dropper-forhoer-af-hjemsendte-chefer>.

After a year and a half as a repatriation - and suspect - Dorthe Pannerup Madsen returned to Honey . But here she was placed in the communication department "Good language".

- I remember that I had no experience with communication. I had been working with bookkeeping for 37 years inTax , says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen, who finally said goodbye to the Danish tax administration in December last year.

Should move to Horsens

During today's interrogation, it became clear once again that no one really wanted to be known at the small department in Høje Taastrup, from where the billions poured into accounts belonging to foreign rich men .

DORTHE PANNERUP MADSEN.

From 2012 to 2015, the dividend department in Høje Taastrup is believed to have misfunded more than DKK 12.7 billion in dividend tax.

When the previous head of the dividend department, Lisbeth Rømer, retired at the end of 2013, Dorthe Pannerup Madsen took over several of her tasks.

But the formal responsibility lay with another boss - in Horsens.

- As the leaders disappeared, I took care of them in such a way that they were involved in the social network and were invited to participate in our Friday meetings, says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen.

- I was their extended arm in Horsens. I delivered conveniently assistance .

Later, Dorthe Pannerup Madsen was given several management tasks in front of the three-man dividend office.

Former head of the small dividend department: It was all summer Money! But Pannerup did not receive a handover and was not interested in the fact that the dividend refunds were skyrocketing at the time.

- When I take over the tasks in 2014, I only intend that the department will be moved to Jutland. So I have taken over the task and continued it as it has been running in, I do not know for how many years.

According to the plan, the dividend department should have moved to Horsens at the end of 2015.

Wrong department

On top of the fact that the small department in Høje Taastrup was heavily understaffed and stood with one leg in Horsens, it was also in the wrong place in Skat's organization chart .

The department belonged to Payment and Accounting, where no control was carried out, but work was done to ensure that the balance in the accounts and the disbursements were in order.

COMMISSION OF INQUIRY INTO TAX

Undersøgelseskommisionen blev nedsat i sommeren 2017.

Balance and Accounting had neither muscle nor competencies to control the hundreds of reimbursement requests that management receives weekly.

It emerged from several emails submitted during the interrogation that the Office of Dividend Refunds had become a hot potato that no one wanted to have under its management wings.

The dialogue between the various department heads was often about what it cost in half and full man-years to move the tasks around in Skats apparatus.

- It has never been the intention that Payment and Accounting should handle cases in this way, says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen, who in all her years in Tax has been engaged in bookkeeping.

- We were so pressed and cut all the way in and also into the leg. I must probably say that if there was just someone who had called me and said that something was wrong, then I could have stopped it and not sent so much money out of the box, says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen.

American pension funds

One of Pannerup's tasks was to send the monthly accounts up to the system. Month by month, the entire chain of leaders and heads up in the Ministry of Taxation could follow how reimbursements increased by more than 100 percent per year - and in periods per month.

When Dorthe Pannerup's manager asked for an explanation, she asked Sven Nielsen, who sat and approved the refunds, which rolled in while the money rolled out. the treasury .

And then Dorthe Pannerup Madsen forwarded the explanation that American pension funds had opened their eyes to Danish listed companies. They had that too.

But in reality they did not own shares in the Danish companies, which is why they were not entitled to a refund of dividend tax.

Mail from Vargas

During the interrogations, several emails were also presented from the Colombian businessman Camilo Vargas addressed to Dorthe Pannerup Madsen.

Vargas was head of the recovery agent Syntax, which has demanded billions from the Danish state in reimbursement of dividend tax.

Vargas wrote for the first time to Dorthe Pannerup Madsen in April 2014, after Lisbeth Rømer had retired.

- Dear Dorthe. (...) We are currently in the process of completing documentation sent to your department. If possible, we would like to arrange a meeting as soon as possible, he wrote to Dorthe Pannerup Madsen.
- It was not something that made any alarm bells ring with me, says Dorthe Pannerup Madsen today.

After a short correspondence, Pannerup sent the contact information to Sven Nielsen, who was the actual caseworker of the requests.

It has later emerged that Sven Nielsen and Camilo Vargas' relationship developed into a friendship with several wet city trips in Copenhagen.

Sven Nielsen is today charged by the Danish police for his role in the dividend case.
